Lesson activities

1. Starter activity

In small groups ask students to brainstorm answers to the question 'What's important to you in a job?'. A student in each group writes their answers on the paper. Each group feeds back their answers to the class in turn while the teacher writes the answers on the board.

Teacher facilitates class discussion by asking why these things matter to people. Will the same things matter to them in 25 years' time or can priorities change? Teacher can use the priorities already written on the board to find out whether they might still be important to them in the future.

Emphasise that different things matter to different people at different stages in their lives. Priorities are personal to each individual.

Time
required

Min

Resources

Paper and pen per group

2. Priorities questionnaire

Students login to their Morrisby account at www.morrisby.com > Login. Once logged in students navigate to About Me > Priorities to complete the Priorities questionnaire. If they have already answered Priorities, they can review their answers by selecting Retake Questionnaire.

Note: if anyone has forgotten their password it can be retrieved using Forgotten Login, accessed from <https://app.morrisby.com/forgotten-password>

Time

10
Min

Resources

One computer or tablet per student

3. Priorities worksheet/form

Students complete the My Priorities worksheet/form to research a career which interests them, and to assess if the career fits with their priorities.

Time

20
Min

Resources

The form My Priorities is in a student's Morrisby account in Progress > Activities > My Priorities OR hand out the My Priorities worksheet

Differentiation

Some students may need help with answering the My Priorities worksheet/form.

Extension activities

If there isn't enough time to complete the worksheet/form My Priorities in the lesson, it may be done as homework.

Encourage students to talk to someone who works in the career they researched, or another career that interests them, to find out about their personal priorities. They could use their personal contacts for this exercise (eg friends, neighbours, family members) or employees they meet at a careers fair or on work experience.
